

Título: Android Developer

Descripción:

Task : As a Senior Software Development Engineer – Android in the developer programs team, you will take part in the implementation and customization of Android embedded devices. You will work closely with both our customers and the development team to guide our project from concept to developer release and ensure the highest level of quality for your deliverables. The ideal candidates have current and extensive experience developing on and building Android systems and applications. They understand what the limitations of the platform are and can design and implement additional services or help optimize existing ones to meet the product requirements. In this role, you will: Have in-depth expertise working with Android distributions, understand how the emulator works, and how SDK add-ons are built Enjoy working side by side with partners, colleagues and teams on tough problems Are highly effective and thrive in a dynamic environment with multiple, changing priorities Know what's important when releasing software to developers and have been through the process from start to finish Are comfortable with proactive outward communication and technical leadership and never shy away from a challenge
